THE CAMPANINI CONCERT.

The "Appeal's" Critic Views it from an Unbiased Standpoint.

On Friday evening those of the Carson people who love music and cheap railroad excursions turned out in a body and visited the Comstock to hear the celebrated Int family.

There was Campanini, Glassini, Bald Corsini.

All from a small town in Italy, somewhere near Milan.

THE CORNER BRIGADE.

Then one hundred people who dug their heels into the ice going up Union street, were greeted at the International corner by a brigade of people arrayed in long linen dusters, the remnants of the Senatorial campaign of 1886, and short-legged pants left over from the previous campaign.

This same crowd has stood on that same corner for years in the same attitudes—arms to the elbows in their breeches pockets, and necks craned forward, in all degrees of weather, watching the Carson people land.

THE CONCERT.

When the Carson contingent sauntered up the aisle they were at once recognized by their broad, musical ears, and then the Comstockers, whose idea of music is satisfied by the Arkansas Traveler, played by "Kelly, the Fiddler," were delighted, as they knew that somebody would be on deck who would know where the applause came in.

BAD COLDS.

All Italian opera singers over 40 have bad colds. After they get through singing in Europe they come to America and make a sort of Grand Farewell Catarrhal tour and freeze right on to their bad colds.

Take away an Italian opera singer's bad cold in America and the calling of the singer would be gone.

Geo. Thaxter offered Scalchi a bottle of Shiloh's cough cure for half price, and she positively refused to buy, showing that the bad cold is too good a snap to let go of. All these people have long heads.

SCALCHI

Was regarded as the lioness of the evening, and came on the stage in gorgeous Columbia river salmon colored silk and low cut neck. She was at once recognized by the Carson audience as looking like Jennie Forrest, of the Capitol lodging house, (whose advertisement appears in our inside page.)

Through some misunderstanding between her and the piano man they did not start off together. The pianist grazed up and down the whole range of keys and made several staccato licks to attract her attention, but she paid no heed, although she was probably quite ready at any time to start whenever the tune broke in where she wanted it.

Whether this tedious wait was due to some misunderstanding about which should carry miners' and which railroad time, or because the pianist agreed to practice the scales in order to give Scalchi time to count the house, we have not at present any means of knowing.

When they did hitch, however, all went well. All agreed that when on the lower register she was great. After she finished, had she applied to get on the Great Register of Storey she could have done so.

NANNETTI AND GLASSININI.

These two distinguished Italians sang a duet. Although they sang in their Italian tongue they wore regular American clothes. It is said that when Gambilki died his mantle fell on Nannetti, but we should say that his pants fell on him also. These were the same pants that Gambilki wore on his last appearance here in '63, for all recognized the bag at the knees. Their singing was flavored high, and the applause loud.

MME. TORICELLI.

Here was the girl that had a heavy pull on the audience from the start.

A plainer, more unassuming artist never came before an audience. She wore a blue dress, her hair was brushed plainly and not a single jewel or ornament showed anywhere. As her modest figure stood half facing dress circle, waiting for the tone from the piano, the lack of that affectation so common with musical artists won the house.

Then she coaxed a little note out of the instrument; one hardly knew whether it came from a flute, a violin or was a stray chirp of a passing bird.

For ten minutes she entranced every ear in that audience; every sweep of the bow, every quiver of the hand showed that she was the mistress of manipulation, every shower of notes that fell like a spray of diamond dust told of her technical triumph and every time the instrument sobbed and wailed like a human voice, the soul of the player was throbbing inside.

No violinist ever drew a bow in Nevada with such subtle touch and so thoroughly delighted an audience.

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

—The Postoffice at Rio Seco, Butte county Cal., will be discontinued from January 25th.

—It is stated the Mexican Government will put General Garcia, the Indian-fighter, in command of the campaign against Bernal, the bandit.

—The appointment of Delegate Joseph of New Mexico on the Committee of Territories seems to be satisfactory to Mormon politicians in Utah.

—The people of Olema are indignant that a report should have gained currency that they had a case of small-pox among them. It is stated there is none of the disease in Marin county.

—At Pajarito, a border Mexican town near Albuquerque, a local election in which the American element triumphed over the Mexicans led to a stabbing affray which may result fatally.

—George B. Henderson, Superintendent of the Livermore Gas Company, has disappeared, leaving a note stating that he would soon be beyond all earthly troubles. His accounts are straight.

—The Provincial Government of British Columbia will appeal to the Privy Council in England in the case of the ownership of the mineral lands in the 40-mile railway belt, recently decided at Ottawa against them.

—The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Company has given notice of intention to apply to the Dominion Government for power to operate a transfer ferry to connect with the American railway system at Port Angeles, W. T.

—In the Superior Court at Marysville Thursday, Judge Kaiser imposed a fine of $250 on the Sierra Union Water and Mining Company for contempt of court, in violating the anti-debris injunction in the suit brought by Yuba county. This is the first conviction of the violation of the injunction.

—Nearly six thousand dollars have been guaranteed by the citizens of Sacramento for the purpose of erecting a building near the depot, on ground donated by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, in which to maintain a permanent exhibit of products of the soil of that locality.

—Since the last report one case of smallpox has broken out at Sierra City, making sixteen in all. Two cases are in severe form and one may prove fatal. Two gamblers who left Sierra City a couple of weeks ago have been taken down at North Bloomfield. All outgoing mail has been stopped and business is almost entirely suspended.

—The State Board of Health met at Sacramento Cal., last night. The Secretary was authorized to inform Boards of Health in other States of the prevalence of small-pox in California, and to have printed and distributed 10,000 copies of a circular giving information concerning small-pox. It was resolved to have inspectors appointed at Tulare, Truckee, San Pedro, San Diego, and Santa Barbara to inspect trains and steamers, and that the State Inspectors be instructed to inform the public that vaccination is the only protector for small-pox. The Secretary is to supply representatives of the Board with virus.
